

SURVEY RESULTS: Student-Athletes and Parents on COVID-19 Impact

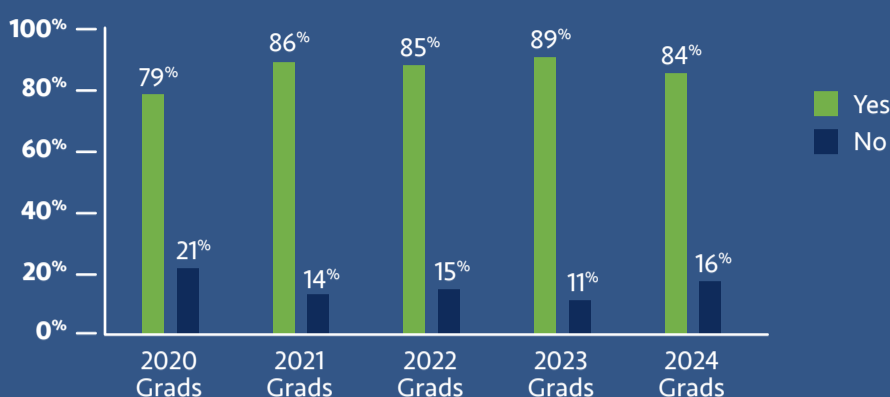

In early May, NCSA completed a survey of 3,350+ parents and student-athletes across various sports to gauge the impact of the coronavirus pandemic on their college recruiting process.

85%

of parents said their student-athlete remains hopeful that they will receive a scholarship.

Is your athlete still hoping to receive a scholarship?

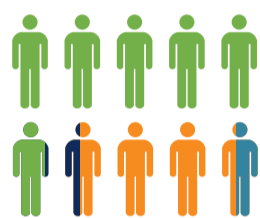

Both parents and student-athletes are optimistic that summer camps will still be held.

59%

of student-athletes anticipate being able to attend camps this summer

Do you anticipate being able to attend camps this summer?

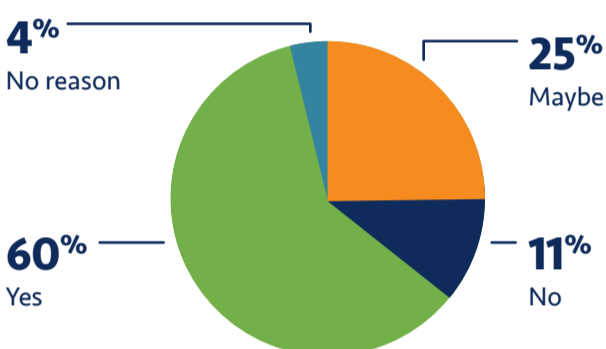

Yes: 59% No: 5% Maybe: 30% No reason: 6%

60%

of parents plan to send their student-athlete to camps or showcases this summer

Do you plan on your student-athlete attending camps or showcases this summer?

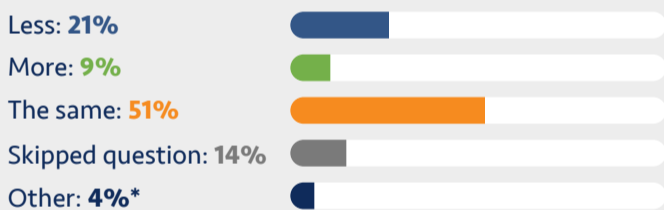

When asked a similar question, college coaches were pessimistic about 2020 summer camps, with 71% of coaches saying they do not think summer camps will happen. Ultimately, with the NCAA Division 1 Committee's decision to extend the dead period through July 31, whether parents and athletes are willing to attend summer camps or not, camps are unlikely to resume before the fall.

51%

of parents said their financial investment in their student-athletes' travel or club team will not change.

Will COVID-19 make you more or less likely to invest in travel or club teams for your athlete in the next year?

(*Many saying their financial investment is dependent on the course of the pandemic in the upcoming months)

30%

of student-athletes are concerned that colleges will cut their sport

Are you worried about colleges eliminating your sport?

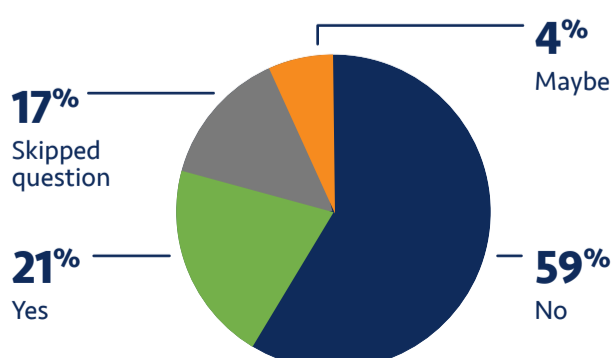

Only

21%

of student-athletes have heard from their club or high school coach regarding a recruiting plan during the COVID-19 pandemic

Has your club or high school coach communicated to you about a recruiting plan in light of COVID-19?

67%

of student-athletes said they would like to hear from their club or high school coach during this time

